THE TIMES.

A. H. CLEMENT, EDITOR.

WEDNESDAY, MAR. 21, 1906.

The National Democratic Committee has a chairman at last which means one satisfied and a dozen sore heads.

"Patron" takes a shot at the school officers for changing books. If we could get a few more "Patrons" in the fight the cost of school books would be reduced.

But for the 'nigger in the woodpile' the present administration of Virginia affairs would be retired for incompetency.

Our institutions educational and eleemosynary, our departments, in fact our every branch of Government is constantly under fire and would be "burned out" but for the old dodge. It is deplorable but we just don't know the remedy.

Even the Southern people have not understood Tillman much better than they did Lincoln. It comes as a surprise to learn that the man of "pitchfork" notoriety should be one of the best read and most learned members of the Senate and that even in delirium he babbles out poetry as freely as our mountain springs send out water. Prejudice makes some people blind as bats.

Japan flushed with victories, won on land and sea, faces another foe in whose presence she loses her banners and cries aloud for help. Gaunt famine has made its pitiless assault and the rout is complete. Heroism avails nothing and martial power is a thing of no value. No general is gifted enough and no soldiers courageous enough to successfully repel the attack. But what courage can not do charity can, and already Heaven's angel on earth has gone to the rescue. "Peace hath her victories no less renowned than war."

THE TROLLEY.

It is said that the trolley car has 'come to stay' and that already they are carrying seven passengers where the steam roads carry one. And close upon this announcement comes this one, the magnates of the steam roads are beginning to control them so as to kill off competition. Owing to the trolley car which now flies between Richmond and Petersburg the time can not be far in the future when the intervening space will be crowded with houses.

Will not the trolley eventually find its way into the country places and so be of practical value to our farmer friends. What about our trolley to Charlotte C. H.? We offer the president space to explain the delay in commencing the work.

Death of a Prominent Buckingham Citizen.

The sudden death of Mr. C. A Spencer was a great surprise to everyone, it was caused by blood poison. He had a boil or pimple on his face from which he suffered some pain for several days and on Thursday the 15th he had it lanced, when symptoms of blood poison developed and he died in the shortest time despite the efforts of three physicians to save his life. Addie Spencer, as he was familiarly known, was a christian, a mason, a friend to the human race, and as he expressed it he "tried to be always ready to die." The man is dead and his brother masons have laid his body to rest in the new cemetery he helped to make, but the many kind deeds he has done and the example he set are living monuments to his memory, and to his children, four of whom survive him, he leaves that heritage rather to be chosen than great riches—a good name.

Mr. Spencer must have had a premonition of his approaching end, for only a few days before his death he pointed out the exact spot where he wished to be buried and to his son he talked of his business affairs

Only a few weeks ago these columns contained an account of the death of Mr. William Pierce, a son-in-law of Mr. Spencer; both men seemingly in full vigor of manhood and health and taken so suddenly, leaving two devoted wives to mourn their loss and two devoted families of children, whose consolation must be that the lives of their fathers were such that each will do well to imitate the examples they set.

Changes and Cost of Text-books of the Public Schools of Virginia.

I have noticed with pleasure, through the papers the many bills before the Virginia Legislature, for the improvements of our public schools, as well as our colleges. The increased appropriation, of four hundredt housand dollars, will help much in securing better teachers, and longer terms. The question, of the multiple or single list of books, is still before the House. It is a question of great importance to the people, for it means a saving or a loss of much money to them.

The system, as it is today in Virginia, permitting each county to adopt its own text-books, from competitive book companies seemed at first to be a good thing for people But it has its evil side, and the people have been the loosers thereby. The book companies and their agents employ influential and intelligent men in cities, towns and counties of the state to procure the adoption of their text-books and the company which pays the largest fee generally has its books selected for the schools. Those influential men get very interested in the schools, trustees, officials and teachers and suggest improvements and many changes, and the change of books to them is the most important. They generally name books, which they think superior to the ones in use and by contrasting the books by pointing out some supposed inferior paragraphs, chapters and subjects in the inferior books with those they claim superior. They call the attention of the teachers and school officials to the very necessary change and thereby secure the selection of the book upon which the book companies and agents are paying them a bribe for their influence in procuring the adoption of those books, amounting to thousands of dollars, and the innocent and unsuspecting teachers and school officials never once think these men are paid to secure the adoption of those books, thereby forcing an expense upon the people which has become an oppressive burden to people of moderate means. Hence the many changes of book, all over the State and the exhorbitant prices of text books—more changes more pay.

The multiple list affords too much competition by unscrupulous book companies and their agents to offer large bribes for the adoption of their books. Virginia ought to have the State School Board to adopt good standard text-books for the public schools, and have the same books taught all over the state. If we could have a law, requiring text-books to be retained a certain number of years, (say a period of ten years) in regular use, after they are placed in the schools, it would save the people much money, and keep down the unscrupulous book companies and their agents. Virginia can and ough to reduce the prices of her text-books. Stop the frequent changes of school books, adopt a standard list and keep it, for so many years.

Appomattox has suffered from the many changes of school books; in the space of ten years, three Virginia histories have been used,—McGill's, Smithey's and Chandler's; grammars, Hyde's, Harvey's, Whitney and Lockwood's; algebras—Baskerville and Sewell's; arithmetics, spellers, readers and all the other books have been changed from session to session. Now why is this expense put on the people? Can it be said of any people in Appomattox that they are paid to have the books changed? I cannot believe so,—yet the frequent and expensive changes are made each session, and the burden is just as heavy, as if the changes were dishonestly made. I believe the school officials should stop these changes, even though made in the best of faith. School officials, look into the matter and stop the changes in Appomattox. PATRON.

SAVED MY LIFE

That's what a prominent druggist said of Scott's Emulsion a short time ago. As a rule we don't use or refer to testimonials in addressing the public, but the above remark and similar expressions are made so often in connection with Scott's Emulsion that they are worthy of occasional note. From fancy to old age Scott's Emulsion offers a reliable means of remedying impoverished and weak development, restoring lost flesh and vitality, and repairing waste. The action of Scott's Emulsion is no more of a secret than the composition of the Emulsion itself. What it does it does through nourishment—the kind of nourishment that cannot be obtained in ordinary food. No system is too weak or delicate to retain Scott's Emulsion and gather good from it.

We will send you a sample free.

In New Quarters.

The old business adage, "new store new goods" might be applied with absolute truth to the establishment at 922 Main street, now occupied by Messrs. Shearer Bradley & Franklin, for not only has the store been refitted up especially for their rapidly growing clothing business, but the sale conducted by them before they moved almost disposed of their old stock, and as a result nearly all they now offer is new. They occupy five floors, and carry everything in the way of clothing needed by boy or man. The maintenance of low prices for cash and one price to all are business maxims which their six years experience teaches them will bring success every time, and they still adhere to their often published statement that they can save something for every customer on every purchase made. The familiar sign of a victorious game cock which was suspended over the door of their old establishment will still be seen over the entrance to the new, with the exception that they have had made a larger and better sign in keeping with the character of the new store, which is thoroughly up-to-date in every detail.
